DISCLOSURE STATEMENT & AUTHORIZATION UNDER THE FAIR CREDIT REPORTING ACT

By this document, The Prudential Insurance Company of America and/or its parent or any of its affiliates, divisions, or subsidiaries (“Prudential” or the “Company”) discloses to you that a consumer report and/or an investigative consumer report regarding your criminal history and other background information, credit history, credit worthiness, credit capacity, and/or credit standing, and which may contain information as to your character, general reputation, personal characteristics, and/or mode of living, may be obtained by the Company. Any investigative consumer report that is obtained may involve information from personal interviews with others about you.

Any such consumer report or investigative consumer report will be obtained in connection with your application for third party appointee independent contractor status or in connection with your current appointment with the Company.

The nature and scope of the information that Prudential may request includes, but is not limited to: criminal records, including relevant court records and OFAC/FBI Terrorist Watch List; credit records; education records; employment records; social security number trace; Department of Motor Vehicles records; regulatory reporting history; address history; National Insurance Producer Registry (NIPR) records; military records; fingerprint records; professional licensing records; and your record, if any, on file with FINRA’s Central Records Depository.

A consumer report and/or investigative consumer report will be obtained from the following agency:

Business Information Group, Inc. (“BIG”)
P.O. Box 541, Southampton, PA 18966
800-369-2612
www.bigreport.com

By signing this document I understand that I am authorizing Prudential to obtain a consumer report and/or an investigative consumer report for one or more of the reasons described above. I understand that this authorization shall remain on file and shall serve as a continuing authorization for Prudential to procure additional consumer reports and/or investigative consumer reports for one or more of the reasons described above at any time during my appointment by Prudential, to the maximum extent permissible by law.

This authorization shall be valid in original, faxed or photocopied form. This authorization shall expire upon termination of my appointment with Prudential.

Please sign and date this form in the spaces provided below and retain a copy for your files.

IMPORTANT NOTICE/PLEASE READ

Please go back and make sure that you have carefully reviewed and then signed and dated the separate “Disclosure Statement & Authorization Under the Fair Credit Reporting Act.”

You now have come to a new set of separate documents.

Review carefully the separate document, “A Summary of Your Rights Under the Fair Credit Reporting Act” (pages 1-4 of 11).

Next, review carefully either or both of the following separate documents, if they are applicable to you:

- Notice of Rights – State of Washington, Fair Credit Reporting Act (pages 5-7 of 11); and/or
- Disclosure of Rights in California (pages 8-9 of 11);

Next, review carefully the separate “Additional Disclosures Under Federal and State Law in Connection With the Procurement of Consumer Report / Investigative Consumer Reports.” (pages 10-11 of 11). Follow the instructions for acknowledging or signing pages 10-11 of 11 of this document.

A Summary of Your Rights Under the Fair Credit Reporting Act

The federal Fair Credit Reporting Act (FCRA) promotes the accuracy, fairness, and privacy of information in the files of consumer reporting agencies. There are many types of consumer reporting agencies, including credit bureaus and specialty agencies (such as agencies that sell information about check writing histories, medical records, and rental history records). Here is a summary of your major rights under the FCRA. For more information, including information about additional rights, go to www.consumerfinance.gov/learnmore or write to: Consumer Financial Protection Bureau, 1700 G Street N.W., Washington, DC 20552.

- You must be told if information in your file has been used against you. Anyone who uses a credit report or another type of consumer report to deny your application for credit, insurance, or employment – or to take another adverse action against you – must tell you, and must give you the name, address, and phone number of the agency that provided the information.
- You have the right to know what is in your file. You may request and obtain all the information about you in the files of a consumer reporting agency (your “file disclosure”). You will be required to provide proper identification, which may include your Social Security number. In many cases, the disclosure will be free. You are entitled to a free file disclosure if:
 - a person has taken adverse action against you because of information in your credit report;
 - you are the victim of identity theft and place a fraud alert in your file;
 - your file contains inaccurate information as a result of fraud;
 - you are on public assistance;
 - you are unemployed but expect to apply for employment within 60 days.

In addition, all consumers are entitled to one free disclosure every 12 months upon request from each nationwide credit bureau and from nationwide specialty consumer reporting agencies. See www.consumerfinance.gov/learnmore for additional information.

- You have the right to ask for a credit score. Credit scores are numerical summaries of your credit-worthiness based on information from credit bureaus. You may request a credit score from consumer reporting agencies that create scores or distribute scores used in residential real property loans, but you will have to pay for it. In some mortgage transactions, you will receive credit score information for free from the mortgage lender.
- You have the right to dispute incomplete or inaccurate information. If you identify information in your file that is incomplete or inaccurate, and report it to the consumer reporting agency, the agency must investigate unless your dispute is frivolous. See www.consumerfinance.gov/learnmore for an explanation of dispute procedures.

SUMMARY OF RIGHTS

PLEASE REVIEW AND RETAIN THIS DOCUMENT FOR YOUR RECORDS. IT SHOULD NOT BE RETURNED TO PRUDENTIAL WITH YOUR COMPLETED APPOINTMENT APPLICATION.

- Consumer reporting agencies must correct or delete inaccurate, incomplete, or unverifiable information. Inaccurate, incomplete or unverifiable information must be removed or corrected, usually within 30 days. However, a consumer reporting agency may continue to report information it has verified as accurate.
- Consumer reporting agencies may not report outdated negative information. In most cases, a consumer reporting agency may not report negative information that is more than seven years old, or bankruptcies that are more than 10 years old.
- Access to your file is limited. A consumer reporting agency may provide information about you only to people with a valid need -- usually to consider an application with a creditor, insurer, employer, landlord, or other business. The FCRA specifies those with a valid need for access.
- You must give your consent for reports to be provided to employers. A consumer reporting agency may not give out information about you to your employer, or a potential employer, without your written consent given to the employer. Written consent generally is not required in the trucking industry. For more information, go to www.consumerfinance.gov/learnmore.
- You may limit “prescreened” offers of credit and insurance you get based on information in your credit report. Unsolicited “prescreened” offers for credit and insurance must include a toll-free phone number you can call if you choose to remove your name and address from the lists these offers are based on. You may opt out with the nationwide credit bureaus at 1-888-5-OPTOUT (1-888-567-8688).
- You may seek damages from violators. If a consumer reporting agency, or, in some cases, a user of consumer reports or a furnisher of information to a consumer reporting agency violates the FCRA, you may be able to sue in state or federal court.
- Identity theft victims and active duty military personnel have additional rights. For more information, visit www.consumerfinance.gov/learnmore.

States may enforce the FCRA, and many states have their own consumer reporting laws. In some cases, you may have more rights under state law. For more information, contact your state or local consumer protection agency or your state Attorney General. For information about your federal rights, contact:

DISCLOSURE OF RIGHTS IN THE STATE OF WASHINGTON

NOTICE OF RIGHTS - STATE OF WASHINGTON FAIR CREDIT REPORTING ACT

Washington's Fair Credit Reporting Act (19 RCW 182) requires reporting agencies to provide you a summary of your rights and remedies under the law when providing you with a written copy of your credit report. Under the Washington law, a covered entity who wishes to obtain a consumer report and/or an investigative consumer report for someone must make a written disclosure advising the individual that such a report may be obtained; must obtain the consent of that individual before obtaining such a report; and, if an investigative consumer report is to be obtained, must provide the individual with a summary of rights and remedies under the law. Under the Washington law you have a right:

To have your name and address excluded from any list provided by a consumer reporting agency in connection with a credit transaction or direct solicitation you do not initiate. You must notify the consumer reporting agency in writing through the notification system maintained by the agency, and must include a statement that you do not consent to any use of consumer reports relating to you in connection with any transaction you did not initiate.

To request a consumer reporting agency to disclose all information in its file on you at the time of your request, including disclosure of the sources of the information.

To the identification of each person or business which obtained your report for employment purposes during the two years prior to your request, and each person or business which obtained your report for any other purpose within six months prior to your request, including those inquiries in connection with a credit transaction you did not initiate. Identification will include the name of the person or trade name under which the person conducts business, and, if you request, that person's business' address.

To receive credit file disclosures during normal business hours and on reasonable notice (1) in person, if you appear in person and furnish proper identification, (2) by telephone, if you make written request with proper identification and pay for any toll charges, or (3) by any other reasonable means available to the consumer reporting agency and authorized by you. For in-person disclosure, you may be accompanied by one other person of your choosing, although you may be required to furnish written permission for your credit file to be discussed in the other person's presence. If a credit score is disclosed as part of your credit report, you will be provided an explanation of the meaning of the credit score.

To an explanation of how you may exercise rights and remedies under the Washington law, including the name, address, and phone number of the agency responsible for enforcing this law.

WASHINGTON DISCLOSURE

PLEASE REVIEW AND RETAIN THIS DOCUMENT FOR YOUR RECORDS. IT SHOULD NOT BE RETURNED TO PRUDENTIAL WITH YOUR COMPLETED APPOINTMENT APPLICATION.

You may write to the Attorney General, 1125 Washington St. SE., P.O. Box 40100, Olympia, WA 98504-0100, or call (360) 753-6200.

To notify the consumer reporting agency if you dispute the completeness or accuracy of any item or information in your consumer report or your investigative consumer report, and to have disputed items reinvestigated without charge, and the current status of the disputed information recorded in your file within 30 business days from the date the consumer reporting agency receives your dispute. You will be notified if the agency stops reinvestigating disputed information upon determining the dispute is frivolous or irrelevant, including failure on your part to provide sufficient information relative to the dispute. Such notice will be in writing within five business days after the determination that the dispute is frivolous or irrelevant.

To have the consumer reporting agency review all information you submit which is relevant to the disputed information.

To receive notification from the consumer reporting agency when information you disputed is deleted from your file because it could not be verified, but is subsequently found to be complete and accurate and is reinserted into your file.

To file a brief statement with the consumer reporting agency setting forth the nature of your dispute, if the reinvestigation does not resolve the dispute or it is found to be frivolous or irrelevant. Your statement may be limited by the consumer reporting agency, provided you receive help from the agency in writing a clear summary of the dispute.

To request that the consumer reporting agency, when a disputed item of information has been depleted or remains on file with a statement of dispute, to provide notification to any person you designate who, within the past two years, received a copy of your consumer report for employment purposes, or who, within the past six months, received a copy of your consumer report for any other purpose.

To receive the results of the reinvestigation of disputed information within five business days following completion of the reinvestigation.

To request the consumer reporting agency to provide you with a description of the procedure used to determine the accuracy and completeness of the information disputed, including the name, business address, and telephone number of the person or business contacted during the reinvestigation.

To receive disclosure of the information in your file without charge, if requested within 60 days following your receipt of a notice denying you credit, employment, insurance, or other benefit, or notification from a debt collection agency stating that your credit may be or has been impaired. No charges will be imposed for any reinvestigation of disputed information, deletion of information found to be inaccurate, or for assisting you in filing your statement of dispute, for notifying persons who previously received your consumer report.

To receive, from a user of consumer reports (such as a creditor or employer or other covered entity), which has taken adverse action regarding you based on your report, (a) notice of the action taken, and (b) the name, address and telephone number of the consumer reporting agency that furnished the report. Notice of adverse action must be in writing, except verbal notice may be given if the business is regulated by the Washington Utilities and Transportation Commission, or involves an application for the rental and leasing of residential real estate.

To bring legal action against a consumer reporting agency or an employer or other covered entity for failure to comply with its obligations under this law, if you do so within two years after the failure to comply (unless the consumer reporting agency or the employer or other covered entity materially and willfully failed to comply, in which case you may file legal action anytime within two years after you learn the agency or employer has done so).

Washington Independent Contractor Candidates also have the right, upon written request to Prudential within a reasonable period of time, to a complete and accurate disclosure of the nature and scope of the investigation requested. Here, the nature and scope of the investigative consumer report being obtained is described in the “Disclosure Statement & Authorization Under The Fair Credit Reporting Act.”

If you are seeking third party appointee independent contractor status to market Prudential products in the State of California:

Disclosure of Rights In California

You have a right under California law to inspect files maintained on you by an investigative consumer reporting agency pursuant to any of the following procedures, during normal business hours and on reasonable notice: 1) You may personally inspect the files if you provide proper identification (e.g., valid driver's license, social security account number, military identification card, credit cards), and may receive a copy of the file for the actual cost of duplication services provided. 2) You may make a written request, with proper identification, as described above, for copies to be sent by certified mail to a specified addressee. (Investigative consumer reporting agencies complying with requests for certified mailings under this section shall not be liable for disclosures to third parties caused by mishandling of mail after such mailings leave the agency). 3) You may make a written request, with proper identification as described above, for telephone disclosure of a summary of information contained in your files, if any toll charge is prepaid by or charged directly to you.

If you are unable to provide "proper identification" through the types of cards or numbers listed above, the agency may require additional information concerning your employment and personal or family history in order to verify your identity. The agency must provide trained personnel to explain to you any information that the agency is required to furnish you from your file. The agency also must provide you with a written explanation of any coded information contained in your files at the time inspection of your files is permitted. You are permitted by law to be accompanied by one other person of your choosing when inspecting your files. That person must furnish reasonable identification. The agency may require you to provide the agency with a written statement granting permission to the agency to discuss your file in such person's presence. The agency also is not required by law to make available to you the sources of information in your files, although such information would be obtainable through proper discovery procedures in any court action brought under Title 1.6A of the Civil Code pertaining to Investigative Consumer Reporting Agencies.

In the document you are being presented with for signature entitled "Disclosure Statement & Authorization Under The Fair Credit Reporting Act," you are being notified of the Internet Web site address of the investigative consumer reporting agency that would be used to conduct the investigation resulting in the investigative consumer report, or, if the agency has no Internet Web site address, the telephone number of the agency, where you may find information about the investigative reporting agency's privacy practices, including whether your personal information will be sent outside the United States or its territories, and information (again describing its privacy practices with respect to its preparation and processing of investigative consumer reports) that complies with subdivision (d) of Section 1786.20 of the California Civil Code.

Additional Disclosures Under Federal and State Law In Connection With the Procurement of Consumer Report/Investigative Consumer Reports

In addition to rights you have under the federal Fair Credit Reporting Act (“FCRA”), explained in separate documentation you have received entitled: “Disclosure Statement & Authorization Under The Fair Credit Reporting Act,” different state laws may apply to you, depending on the state in which you are seeking to become authorized to market Prudential’s products as a third party appointee independent contractor (not as an employee). These laws may provide greater or different rights in connection with Prudential procuring a consumer report or an investigative consumer report on you.

California, Minnesota, New Jersey, or Oklahoma Independent Contractor Candidates (i.e., you are seeking authorization to market Prudential products in one of these states) may check below to receive a copy of the consumer report/investigative consumer report:

I would like to receive a copy of the report [Check Box for Yes]:

Massachusetts Independent Contractor Candidates (i.e., you are seeking authorization to market Prudential products in this state) have a right to receive and inspect their reports by contacting the consumer reporting agency, identified in the document you received entitled: “Disclosure Statement & Authorization Under The Fair Credit Reporting Act.”

Minnesota Independent Contractor Candidates (i.e., you are seeking authorization to market Prudential products in this state) Right to Additional Information from the Consumer Reporting Agency Itself. Under state law Minnesota candidates have the right to request additional information on the nature of the report. Specifically, a consumer reporting agency shall, upon written request to the consumer reporting agency from you, make a complete and accurate disclosure of the nature and scope of the report. The disclosure under this subdivision must be in writing and must be mailed or delivered to you within five days after the request for the disclosure was received or the consumer report was requested, whichever date is later.

New York Independent Contractor Candidates (i.e., you are seeking authorization to market Prudential products in this state) have a right to receive and inspect their reports by contacting the consumer reporting agency, identified in the document you received entitled: “Disclosure Statement & Authorization Under The Fair Credit Reporting Act.”

To All Third Party Appointee Independent Contractor Candidates. Pursuant to the federal Fair Credit Reporting Act, this is a further notice that an investigative consumer report is being requested from the consumer reporting agency whose name, address and website is set forth in the “Disclosure Statement & Authorization Under The Fair Credit Reporting Act.” That is the separate document you are being presented to sign to authorize Prudential to obtain that investigative consumer report. The nature and scope of the investigative consumer report being obtained is described in the “Disclosure Statement & Authorization Under The Fair Credit Reporting Act.”

To All Third Party Appointee Independent Contractor Candidates. Prudential will only request information regarding your credit history, credit worthiness, credit capacity, and/or credit standing as permitted by law. Prudential is subject to compliance oversight in accordance with the provisions of 6801 to 6809, inclusive, of Title 15 of the United States Code and state and federal statutes or regulations implementing those sections.

Release of Liability. I hereby release, to the maximum extent permitted by law, The Prudential Insurance Company of America, all of its officers, directors, employees and agents, and all of Prudential’s subsidiaries, divisions and affiliated entities, and all of their officers, directors employees and agents, from any and all liability in connection with Prudential procuring any consumer report or investigative consumer report and/or investigations in connection with such activities.¹

No Contracts or Promises. None of the Notices of Rights provided to you in connection with Prudential procuring a consumer report or an investigative consumer report on you are intended as anything more than descriptions of what the applicable law requires. None are intended as contracts of employment, or promises. By signing this document you understand and agree that your application is to become authorized to market Prudential’s products as a third party appointee independent contractor (not as an employee of Prudential, or any of its subsidiaries or affiliated companies).

What I Have Received Regarding Consumer Reports/Investigative Consumer Reports. I acknowledge receipt of “A Summary of Your Rights Under the Fair Credit Reporting Act”; “Disclosure Statement & Authorization Under The Fair Credit Reporting Act”; “Additional Disclosures Under Federal and State Law In Connection With the Procurement of Consumer Report/Investigative Consumer Reports,” with its attached copy of a Notice of Rights under Washington State law entitled “Disclosure Of Rights In The State Of Washington,” as well as a Notice of Rights under California law entitled “Disclosure of Rights In California,” each applicable depending upon the State in which I am seeking authorization to market Prudential’s products as a third party appointee independent contractor.
